

The Bank of Ireland Regional Pulses bring together the views of households and firms around the country. The readings for April 2019 (3 month moving average basis) show that sentiment was up on the month across the board.

While households remained nervous about economic prospects this month – the balance of positive and negative responses was in the red in all regions – the delay to Brexit helped the general business mood. On the housing front, house price and rent expectations were in the black countrywide in April, with most survey respondents considering it cheaper to buy than rent in their area.

Bank of Ireland

economic pulse